Q: Tell us about Price Benowitz?

A: Price Benowitz serves the greater Washington, DC region and its partners are proud to call Bethesda home. Reflecting Bethesda's culture of community and volunteerism, our partners are active contributors to the discussions that shape the legal profession as well as allies of socially conscious initiatives. Managing partner Seth Price is a frequent national speaker and founding partner David Benowitz has vigorously advocated for individuals involved in white collar and high-profile criminal defense cases over the past 25 years. David devotes a significant portion of his time to pro bono matters working to exonerate wrongfully convicted people through the Mid-Atlantic Innocence Project and other avenues.

Our partners' dedication to providing an unparalleled legal experience is reflected throughout the firm. Partner John Yannone and his department are passionate about personal injury, workers' compensation and medical malpractice law. Partner Kush Arora is one of 15 criminal attorneys at Price Benowitz fighting to protect our clients. Partner

Tammy Begun heads our family law practice, bringing tenacity to protecting her clients' interests. Partner Kerri Castellini guides people in handling their trusts and estates needs while Partner Natalia Segermeister fights for her immigration clients' rights with an unrivaled zeal.

Q: What makes Price Benowitz special?

A: Our firm is special because we have assembled talented teams of attorneys passionate about helping others. We are a regional powerhouse of dedicated lawyers and staff committed to aggressively representing people in need. We take great pride in the diverse legal services we offer and our client-centered approach. All Price Benowitz team members are devoted to ensuring that no questions or concerns go unaddressed. We are a group dedicated to one cause: using great legal prowess to level the playing field as we fight for the freedom and rights of our clients.
